

Further information for students studying History in NSW

Students must ensure they study the correct sequence of units to allow them to teach EITHER Modern History, OR Ancient History, OR both.

Students commencing from 2019 are required to include one ancient or medieval and one modern history unit in their major/minor alongside the core units, to meet NESA requirements. Ancient history units are marked with a * below. Medieval history units are marked with an ^M and may be used as Ancient or Modern.

Students who want to be able to teach both Modern and Ancient History should extend their minor or major to achieve this.

MAJOR

Include at least 5 units of modern history and 3 units of ancient history (or vice versa) including HIST106 and 2 third year history units including HIST308. For a major in Ancient History students must include 1 third year Ancient History unit.

MAJOR

8 units with at least 5 units of Ancient and 5 units of Modern (including HIST106 and 2 third year units including HIST308 and 1 300 level ancient history unit).

MINOR+2

Include at least 3 units of Modern History and 3 units of Ancient History to count both as second teaching areas.

Students who only want to teach Ancient or Modern (not both)

MAJOR

Study at least 5 units in your chosen history discipline that includes at least 1 unit of Modern (if you want to teach Ancient history) or Ancient history (if you want to teach Modern history). You must include HIST106 and 2 third year units including HIST308 and 1 300 level Ancient history unit if you want to teach Ancient history.

MINOR

Choose at least 3 units from Modern History and 1 from Ancient or Medieval history (or vice versa).

MINOR+2

Choose 5 units from Modern History and 1 from Ancient history or Medieval history (or vice versa). You must include 2 units from 300 level to allow your chosen history discipline to be a first teaching area.