Hope in a Secular Age

Deconstruction, Negative Theology, and the Future of Faith

David Newheiser

Hope in a Secular Age argues that hope is the indispensable precondition of religious practice and secular politics. Drawing on Jacques Derrida and Dionysius the Areopagite, David Newheiser construes hope as a discipline of persistence that acknowledges its uncertainty. Against this background, he develops a negative political theology that resists both quietism and theocracy in the name of a circumspect hope.
